FINE EXCURSION BOAT

The Water Maiden a Thing of Beauty on the Ohio.

A NEW BARGE, EAST LIVERPOOL

Captain Lee Anshutz on Deck Once More. He Will Control a Fine Excursion Boat And a Superb Barge—No Liquor Will Be Sold on Either Boat—The Barge Will Be Named East Liverpool—All Groceries And Supplies Will Be Purchased of Our Home Merchants.

Captain Lee Anshutz, well and favorably known along the Ohio river, and who has a host of friends and acquaintances in East Liverpool, is again on deck and in control of the handsome steamer Water Maiden, under whose flag the gallant and courteous captain will carry excursionists during the season of 1895. Captain Anshutz has always been absolute commander on his own boat, always and ever courteous, clever and agreeable with all with whom he comes in contact, but preserving strict discipline on his steamer when on duty. He had quite extensive business transactions with our city merchants when last on duty on the Ohio, and he can point with pride to the fact that he owes no man anything save good will.

The Water Maiden will act as motive power and escort to a handsome barge, now in course of construction at Marietta, to be known under the name of East Liverpool. This barge will comfortably accommodate from 600 to 700 passengers. No expense is being spared in her construction and fitting up, as her owner is determined to make her the finest excursion boat on the Ohio river. The dancing platform will be 80x30 feet. A high railing will prevent all danger by water, and every precaution will be taken against accidents. A superbly fitted up restaurant will add much to the comfort and convenience of guests, while all the substantial and luxuries of the season will be spread before those who patronize the establishment, which will be under the charge of a caterer of life-long experience and skill. Prices for lunches and meals will be the same as control in our city.

Captain Anshutz intends making his boat popular at this point, and to this end he will patronize East Liverpool in securing groceries and provisions, meals, etc., and in fact anything and everything needed on boat and barge.

The following clipping is taken from the Wheeling News of April 28, speaking of an excursion from that city on Friday last.

"Capt. Lee Anshutz has had his elegant steamer, the 'Water Maiden,' lying at the wharf, repainted the past week and she now presents a beautiful appearance. The captain took out a private excursion Friday afternoon to a point above Bellaire. Among those on board were Reverend and Mrs. B. M. Spurr, Mrs. J. F. Woods, Mrs. J. R. Taylor, of Oakland, Md.; Mrs. Beggs and Mrs. Smith, of Cleveland; Mrs. A. R. Purdy, Mrs. C. R. Oldham, Mrs. E. J. Gallagher, Misses Julia and Virginia Burley, Mary Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gallagher, Jr., John T. Gallagher and J. L. Burley. A splendid time was had by all and the guests were loud in their praise of Mr. Anshutz's new boat. His fine barge, now being built at Marietta, will be finished this week and he will at once take it to East Liverpool, where he expects to run excursions until the low water season, then the boat goes to Pittsburgh where he will run excursions up the Monongahela river. The barge will bear the name of the City of East Liverpool and it is the finest excursion boat on the river. Mr. Anshutz will leave for the above city the last of the week to take out his first excursion."

Another pleasing feature in connection with the Water Maiden and East Liverpool, lies in the fact that Captain Anshutz has decided that no intoxicants shall be sold on either boat. This is certainly a redeeming feature, and will avoid trouble and annoyance. Further than this, the Captain will make it his special business to see that intoxicated or drunken individuals shall not be permitted on board the boats, to annoy passengers, and he will absolutely guarantee the very best of order.

The barge, East Liverpool, will be an entirely new boat, fitted out in a manner especially suited for excursion. She is now being pushed to completion as rapidly as possible, and it is expected that she will float at our city wharf within a very short time. Due notice of her arrival and readiness for business will be given in the columns of the NEWS REVIEW, as her captain is a firm believer in the power and efficiency of printer's ink.

Music will be a pleasing feature in connection with the excursions which will be mapped out by Captain Anshutz, and the very best of music will be furnished, as the wide awake owner believes that the best is the cheapest in the long run.

Captain Anshutz extends greeting to the citizens of East Liverpool and solicits a share of public patronage, confident that he can give pleasure and gratification to one and all. Watch out for his announcement of the first grand excursion.

IN MEMORIAM.

Funeral Services Over the Remains of Mrs. Jobbling.

The Methodist Protestant church was crowded on Sunday afternoon at three o'clock, to witness the last sad rites over the remains of the late Mrs. Jobbling. The choir rendered "It Is Well With My Soul," after which the pastor, Reverend Whitehead, read an appropriate selection of Scripture and offered up a short prayer. Then the choir sang, in touching and tender service of song, "Asleep in Jesus."

The pastor delivered a touching sermon, showing the beauty and desirability of living a Christian life, such as had been lived by deceased, who was not dead, but simply asleep in Jesus, the Savior she had so much loved and so earnestly worked for.

Mrs. Jobbling was born in New Castle on Tyne in the year 1814. She came to the United States some 40 years ago and to East Liverpool some 40 years since. On May 4, 1856, in company with four ladies, she became a charter member of the present Methodist Protestant church organization, at a meeting held in Bradshaw hall. Some of the five are still living. Mrs. Jobbling was an earnest Christian woman, working zealously, intelligently and effectually for the church she loved so well.

After the services at the church yesterday, the entire congregation passed in front of the casket, each one in the edifice apparently eager to take a last view of the sainted mother in Israel. She has gone to her great reward.

Wheelmen Kick.

Wheelmen complain, and with reasonable cause, that small boys in the city are the cause of many accidents to riders of the silent steeds. They seem to believe that the streets are made for them to use as a playground, the particular game to which the wheelmen object being a line of youngsters across the street. The object of the sport seems to be to get as close as possible to a wheel without being knocked down. Since the boys manifest a desire for narrow escapes, wheelmen are disposed to let them have their way.

These Dogs Are Dead.

Agent Adam Hill and three other residents of Third street are fighting mad today because some individual poisoned their dogs last night. The canine owned by Mr. Hill has been his property for eight years, and he would not have parted with it for $100. It was intelligent and had always been a great pet. The other dogs to take the fatal dose were generally known as good dogs, and their owners feel that they have been grievously wronged. The Liverpool dog poisoner needs a lesson.

Attended Services.

Seventy Odd Fellows went to Wellsville yesterday morning, and joining the lodge in that place attended services at the Methodist Episcopal church. The sermon was delivered by Doctor Marsh, the eloquent president of Mount Union college, and was a masterly effort. The Wellsville Odd Fellows numbered many, and the combined forces make one of the largest demonstrations of its kind ever been in that place. Among the notable features of the event was the excellent music.

The Oldest Odd Fellow.

A party made up of Odd Fellows were discussing their order the other day when the question of who was the oldest member of the fraternity in the city was raised. It developed after research that the honor belongs to Thomas Lloyd, he having been a member in good standing for 45 years. The next in line is Squire Manley, who is but a few years behind his competitor. One Odd Fellow wondered if there was any significance in the fact that both are township officials.

Spilled the Water.

Miss Mary Leonard, employed at the residence of J. E. McDonald, in Thompson Place, was the victim of a painful accident on Saturday. She was walking down the stairs with a pan of hot water in her hand when the vessel was tipped, and the contents fell upon her arm. The woman screamed, and Doctor Andrews was called who dressed the injury. The scalding fluid had injured the arm from the elbow to the hand.

WICKED BUZZ ALLISON

He Struck a Man Without the Least Warning.

THE KNUCKLERS CUT DEEP

A Saturday Night Assault With Painful Results—A Drunken Boy Caused the Arrest of the Saloon Keepers—His Name Not Given Out—Other Police News.

An individual, known in the city as "Buzz" Allison, figured so prominently in an incident on Saturday night that the sequel may find a beginning in the penitentiary.

Allison has long been known to the police as an acquaintance of the Zoellers boys, and has ever been observed with a watchful eye, although no serious charge has appeared against him. When Saturday was about to pass into eternity he was so filled with a desire for notoriety that he placed brass knucklers upon his right hand, and walked about for some one to oppose his way. No one being found he sought the vicinity of Sixth street and Broadway. There he saw "Biddy" Blakeley, a young potter whose home is in California Hollow, standing on the corner. Without a word of warning he walked to the boy, and struck him with all his strength. Then Allison gazed for a moment upon his fallen foe, and running down Sixth street disappeared in a crowd near the Diamond. Blakeley fell as though he had been shot, and rolling into the street lay as one dead.

Several persons who had seen the cowardly assault ran to his assistance, and finding him unconscious carried the inanimate form into Berg's barber shop. There it was found that the knucklers had cut deep into the side of his head, one gash being long and jagged while the other was nothing more than a slight cut. The injured part had commenced to swell, and before he had recovered consciousness he wore a lump larger than an ordinary door knob. When Blakeley regained his senses he was offered a revolver by a bystander and urged to find Allison and shoot him, but he was far too weak to think of anything but himself, and knew no anxiety except the best method to get home, where he was taken by some of his friends. The assault was so sudden and un-called for that indignation ran high, and Allison would have received rough treatment had he been caught. The police began a hurried search but the fellow had planned so well to get away that he could not be found. A salty dose is waiting for him when he is captured, and he may spend a portion of his years with his friends the Zoellers.

A FEW DRUNKS.

The Police Had All They Could do Making Arrests.

Dan Densmore was drunk and consequently disorderly in the Diamond on Saturday night, repeating for the benefit of the crowd around him that he would not be taken by any policeman in town. Officer Jennings took all the conceit out of Daniel in a few minutes, and left him to think of his folly in city hall. He saw Mayor Gilbert in the morning, and gave up $10.75 for his liberty.

A man named Ferguson, imbibed too much liquor on Saturday night, and finding the hard pavement on Church alley a downy bed, lay down to rest. Patrolman McMillen chanced to see the individual and walked him to city hall. He was glad to pay $5.00 yesterday morning when the mayor informed him that the price of his release had been set.

A mere boy who gave his name as Ballard Lent was found in a drunken condition by Officer Earle on Saturday night. Believing that boys should not get drunk the officer walked him to jail where he slept away the effects of the debauch. He was allowed to go yesterday upon the payment of $5.00. The boy was asked where he secured the liquor, and after some persuasion gave the name of the saloon keeper. As he is no more than 16 years of age the warrant was made out at once, and given to an officer.

Two saloonists were arrested but it was found that there was no case against either and the charges were withdrawn. Names were unobtainable at city hall.

The patrol was called to the lower end of Second street at noon today, where Chief Gill found a stranger who had lingered too long at the bar. He was too drunk to tell his name and said he was a lumber mogul from the Pennsylvania forest but went behind the bars just the same.

The patrol was called to the lower part of Fourth street yesterday morning at 11:30 o'clock where a drunken man was disgusting residents by his unmanly actions. The patrolman returned without a prisoner, however, the fellow having learned that something was wrong, and left the locality.

Chief Gill is in receipt of a notice from Marshal Jones, of Alliance, of the theft of a bright bay mare owned by S. Miller, of that city, and offering a liberal reward for its recovery.

They Gave Bond.

Thomas Watkins and "Reddy" Randolph were arrested by Chief Gill on Saturday afternoon charged with assault and battery. The complaint was made by Thomas McNicol, who claims they assaulted him. They said they were not guilty, and each gave a bond of $300 to appear at the hearing, the time for which was set by Mayor Gilbert as Wednesday.

Hennessy Swore.

Peter Maher and his company constituted a disappointment to those at the Grand Saturday night. Lew C. Mettle, in imitations of birds and animals was good, Price and Mack in tumbling and Campbell and Beard in musical duo pleased all. The singing throughout was poor and the play did not deserve more than the small crowd which was present. The three rounds sparring between Maher and Billy Hennessy of Boston was uninteresting, except when Maher forgot himself in the beginning of the second round and struck Hennessy a hard blow on the neck. Hennessy was hurt and let out an awful oath while the timekeeper promptly called time and called a couple of other players to draw attention away from the break.

A Narrow Escape.

Russell Heddleson, who is employed as driver by Frank E. Oyster, came near meeting death at the corner of Fourth and Market streets this morning. He turned into Market at a high rate of speed, seated upon a bicycle, and collided with a heavy team coming down the hill. He was thrown to the ground, and the wheel became tangled with the horses' feet, while the boy was in danger of being crushed to death, the frightened animals tramping near his prostrate figure. From his position he coolly called upon the driver to back his team, and then walked away, but little the worse for his experience.

Sand Men Were Mad.

Local dealers in sand complained to Thomas Lloyd, the wharfmaster, that a stranger was hauling sand over the city's property at the wharf, and wanted to know if the practice could not be stopped. He referred the matter to Solicitor Clark who decided that the man was all right. His flat was tied to the landing controlled by C. Metsch, and not to the wharfboat as the objectors had supposed. Because of this the solicitor ruled that the wharf could be used upon the same basis as the public traverse the streets, and the stranger had that privilege.

A Political View.

The genial Frank I. Simmers, who is wandering about New York with the samples of the Specialty Glass Company in his possession, has been thinking on the political situation, and with characteristic brevity has reached the following conclusion:

Past—Good old Democratic times, low prices, low wages.

Present—Good British times, no work, no wages.

Future—Good protective tariff times, plenty of work, best of wages.

A Pair of Black Eyes.

Two ball clubs, captained respectively by W. Hamilton and W. Chambers, played a game in the East End on Saturday afternoon, and the Hamilton team won by a score of 26 to 5. During the contest Milton Martin was the principal in an accident which cost him a pair of black eyes. He was awaiting a grounder, when the ball struck a pebble, and rebounded in his face with terrific force, although the injury was no more serious than a bad bruise.

Home From Scotland.

James Christy, a motorman who was for some time employed on the line here, has returned to this city from Scotland where he visited old friends and relatives. While there he was presented with a handsome gold medal by some of his admirers. He will soon be handling the lever on one of the Wellsville-Liverpool cars.

Died in the Asylum.

SPECIAL TO NEWS REVIEW. LISBON, April 29.—Judge Yeung this morning received a telegram from Dayton announcing the death of William Geddis at the asylum in that place. He was sent from the infirmary of this county several years ago, and the interment will be in Dayton.

THE SHOE WAS A FIT

One Church Member Says Another Is Too Personal.

EXCITING CLOSE OF A SQUABBLE

Among the Members of the Smith's Ferry Young Peoples Society of Christian Endeavor—Five Members Stir Up a Fuss And Draw the Session, Presbytery and Moderator Into It.

The Young Peoples Society of Christian Endeavor connected with the Presbyterian church at Smith's Ferry have been having a variety of difficulties, and it was only yesterday that they held a meeting that even approached the old time gatherings.

The trouble originated with five of the members, who became dissatisfied with the management of affairs. Shortly after they had succeeded in making matters unpleasant for the others an election of officers was held. None of the five secured a position and they kicked again and vigorously. Finally the existing dissatisfaction became a matter of public discussion, and the session of the church decided to put a stop to it. They got together, and after due deliberation and summing of various witnesses decided to disorganize the society. When they declared that there was no longer any such organization the members regardless of their own troubles made a combined howl. They counselled among themselves, and decided to defy the session. They even challenged the right of that body to take such action or interfere with their affairs in any manner. As the society did not care to meet and engender further feeling or criticism from members of the church who had not taken sides in the matter, they appealed through their officers to the body who hears most of the tales of woe in the religious line, the presbytery. Their answer was in sending the moderator to the church a few days ago and a meeting was held at which the troubles were adjusted but not without some excitement. The moderator did not excuse the society nor did he make allowance for the other side. Several speeches were made, and one of the speakers, a prominent lady member, stated that some of the people who never subscribed a cent to church work but posed as the greatest members were among the ones who had caused the trouble. Instantly and before the speaker was seated, a man who poses as a helper in the society, but who is said to be conspicuous because of his failure to support the work financially, jumped to his feet. "That's too personal he shouted," and there was a general laugh. The irate member attempted to make further remarks but the moderator insisted on order and compelled him to shut up.

The moderator finally decided that if the troublesome members of the society would make amends publicly and promise to work in harmony the society would be allowed to continue in the good work it has hitherto accomplished. This was done and all is now serene in religious circles in the oil town. The Smith's Ferry society has been a good one and East Liverpool Endeavorers have enjoyed several visits there and have had them as guests in this city.

Rivermen Are Uneasy.

The river is going down, and every day makes rivermen more anxious. The packets were on time yesterday but did little business at the local wharf taking on only a few packages of ware. The Ben Hur, Bedford and Keystone State will go down the river this evening. Coal men at Pittsburgh want the river to fall so the price of coal will go up, but packet owners are anxious to have enough water to permit their boats to travel.

Forfeiting A Mortgage.

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS REVIEW. LISBON, April 29.—Mrs. Sarah Herick began action today asking the foreclosure of a mortgage on lot 3242 in Bradshaw's addition to East Liverpool. The land is owned by Albert Geon and wife who gave Mrs. Herick the mortgage in September 1892 to secure a note of $1000.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., MONDAY, APRIL 29.

For President,
WILLIAM MCKINLEY,
OF OHIO.

THE Ohio Democracy continues to wonder where it is going to land on the silver question.

COUNCILMEN are chosen for the purpose of representing their constituents and not to carry their own petty spites into the city's business.

If the poor, depraved, weakly Tribune does not get the city printing, it is not because the old thing fails to grovel about the feet of the councilmen imploring their favor and the few dollars going with it. What a sight for the public! Such actions bring disgrace and shame upon the honest men in newspaper work.

THE men who conduct the foreign relations of England know their business from the ground floor to the sky parlor. They have a convenient habit of dropping into the affairs of a nation, and gaining their ends before the rest of the world knows that anything is amiss. The present administration at Washington would gain respect for Old Glory if Cleveland and Gresham would keep their eyes wide open when John Bull proposes to take them into confidence.

THE selection of Zanesville as the place where the next Republican convention of Ohio will be held is a disappointment to the people of Cincinnati, Toledo and Columbus, and to some of the candidates, but shows that the committeemen know a compromise when they see it. There are worse towns than Zanesville on earth,
and the people of that flourishing city
will give the delegates a rousing welcome. They are enterprising and hospitable in Zanesville, and the Republicans need not sorrow because that city was selected.

A LOST OPPORTUNITY.

The man of destiny, as some of the more radical Democratic leaders styled Grover Cleveland before he set the seal of his displeasure upon their aspirations, has been given many an opportunity to rise in the world, and,
like a sensible American finding himself a good thing, has taken the advice of the advertiser and pushed it along. Through the successive steps of his career he has grasped every opportunity to gain a higher notch, and because of his characteristics has been eminently successful. But the president has at last reached that point in his career when he must turn aside to trample down the principle of his life, while the greatest opportunity he ever knew goes wandering into history. He has been president long enough to know that his vision of the good things from tariff reform has vanished into a misty nothing, that a tariff for revenue only is a tariff for national and individual poverty.
While thinking of this the president cannot but know that he possesses
the power to lift the nation and himself, the one from its poverty and the other from the unenviable position which he occupies. A special session of congress, a bill repealing the Wilson law and re-enacting the Mc-Kinley law, passed by both branches and signed by the president, would readily perform the task. It is a simple thing, and Grover Cleveland cannot but know what it would mean in results, but he must sit idly by doing nothing. It is the chance of his life, and he is obtuse indeed if he fails to realize what he loses by his mistake
in being a tariff for revenue advocate.
Poor Cleveland.

Caution about the Use and Selection of Spectacles

"Persons having normal vision will be able to read this paper at a distance of 14 inches from the eye with ease and comfort; and will be able to read it with each eye separately. If unable to do so, your eyes are defective and should have immediate attention. When the eyes become tired from reading the paper, the glasses should be removed and the eyes rested. It is a rare fact that the glasses are needed. The lenses sold in the cheap goods are of an equal quality and have perfectly formed surfaces. Confident use of these glasses will result in positive injury from the constant strain upon the muscles of accommodation in trying to focus the light in the glass."

REAL RAZORBACKS.

A HOMEY AND FEROCIOUS HOG ON HIS NATIVE HEATH.

He Does Not Resemble His Pampered Brother of the Berkshire Breed—His Existence Measured by the Rule of "Root, Hog, or Die"—Hog Killing Parties.

There is a great difference in hogs. The form, contour and face of the rounded, sleek sided, short legged Berkshire and other hogs of high degree do not much resemble the angular, razor backed hog common throughout the south. The countenance of the well bred, well cared for species is chubby and contented looking, the ears small, the snout inclined to turn up rather than down. His less fortunate cousin has a long, narrow face, immense, flopping ears that hang disconsolately over his eyes, and an elongated, pointed snout that seems providentially formed to aid his earthy explorations. "Root, hog, or die," is a common saying in the country of which this hog is a native, and the swine seem to realize the situation. They have long legs and always run with their snouts close to the ground, convenient for unearthing anything eatable which may come in their way. They diligently root up the promising morsel of food and gulp it down, without stopping to enjoy it, and run on apparently faster than ever, grunting as they go, in search of something more—some favorite acorn or juicy bit of grass or berry root, upon which they largely depend for subsistence.

Naturally the vast amount of imperative exercise they take ranging through the woods effectually prevents their taking on much superfluous flesh, and the hair on their narrow backs is as rough and coarse as that of the well bred hog is smooth and glossy. The majority of them are of a dingy white color, perhaps spotted with black, and when a white coated one, scantily covered with hair, has pale eyes, bound around with pink, and very light eyelashes, protruding beneath his drooping ears, he is as ugly a living object as can be imagined.

The little pigs are moderately pretty when young, but not in the least like the plump, little, chubby faced baby Berkshire, and long before they have arrived at the age when they are called "shots" they have become ungainly and common looking. The negroes have great faith in the ability of the hog to survive any amount of neglect and still live to provide sausages and pork stew for the winter season. At certain seasons, when the "shots" can do no damage to the maturing crops, it is necessary to confine them until the fields are bare once more and will admit of their ranging at will.

In the course of a walk once, a small negro boy and girl were found seated on top of the fence which surrounded a pen, flinging corn to two hogs within the inclosure. The rude feeding trough was as dry as if no liquid had ever dampened it, and this on a hot summer afternoon. Inquiry as to when the prisoners had last had water given them elicited no response from the shy little "shots' minders." After some inquiry and explanation that the pigs would like water the boy consented to go to the house, some distance off, for a bucket, after bringing which the children went to the spring, in a little hollow in the woods behind the pen, and procured water for the thirsty creatures. It is needless to say that they drank it with avidity. This pen was in an open field, with not a single bit of shade near. It had belonged to an humble establishment, the house and barn of which had been moved to some other tract of land, and the owner of the hogs had utilized the pen just where it was, the distance from his dwelling, which was plentifully supplied with well water, rendering it most inconvenient to attend to the wants of the animals.

The pen could easily have been moved, as the fence around it was made of movable rails placed zigzag fashion on purpose that it might be changed from place to place, but evidently the comfort of the "shots" was not regarded as of much importance. Later, a small, slim figure, in a scant, homespun dress, faded and torn, suddenly emerged from a narrow path which opened upon the road, and a childish voice said timidly, "Do you want some headache blossom, ma'am?" a little black hand holding out a bunch of delicate pink flowers, with perfume more powerful than sweet. The acceptance of this offering seemed to thaw out her reserve, and the little girl volunteered the information that she and Yankee, her brother, "aimed to dash water to de hog ebery ebenin."

In the days of the old regime the crops were all fenced in, and the hogs, and cattle as well, were allowed to roam at will through the fastnesses of the swamps and timbered tracts. Oftentimes the animals were not seen for months. When the time drew near for hog killing, parties were made up to "drive" the swamp and capture the half wild creatures, as it was desired to fatten them in pens before killing. It was not infrequently the case that the swine became quite ferocious, having been left so long at large, and the hunters found themselves in the midst of a "wild boar" hunt in earnest, which they hugely enjoyed. Most of the farmers of the southern states now leave their crops unfenced, and the stock has to be pastured or looked after, which practice has put an end to such pursuits.—New York Tribune.

AMONG WHEELMEN.

One Cyclist Runs Over Another—Attempt to Start a Wheel.

Two East End cyclists mixed themselves and their wheels up in a rather unusual manner in that section of the city yesterday. Will Chambers and Charles Herbert were riding when Chamber's wheel went into a rut and he was thrown. Herbert was close behind and ran over him "from the feet up." The result was a few bruises for Chambers from the pedals and a whack on the head that raised a big lump. Otherwise he was uninjured.

Some persons, whose names and whereabouts are unknown, visited the Minesinger residence, just above Smiths Ferry, Saturday night, and took Thomas Minesinger's wheel from a shed near by. The wheel did not happen to be a brand new one nor very valuable and it is probably due to these facts that he is still in possession of it. The thief evidently thought he was getting a valuable machine, but on discovering his mistake dropped it about one hundred yards from the house, where it was found after an anxious search. It is supposed to have been the act of a tramp, as they infest that section to the annoyance of the residents.

Charles Deidrick went to Lisbon on his wheel this morning, but it is stated positively that he is not training for the coming road race.

Ira Aiken and Charles Swords made the trip to Beaver Falls on their steel mounts yesterday, causing the hearts of the fair maidens in that vicinity to palpitate with delight.

Proprietor Mort Smith and Frank Smith, of the Hotel Columbia, Beaver Falls, rode to this city on pneumatic steeds yesterday. It is rumored that Mort came simply to get a few days respite from "the gang" and thereby hangs a tale. Mort is well known in this city and his friends have heard of the joke. There resides in Beaver Falls a butcher whose name is Mort Smith. Frequently the two get their mail mixed and when the hotel man got a letter the other day stating that the writer "had shipped one cow and would send the other one soon" the recipient was mystified. He had ordered no cow and didn't want it. In fact he refused to even have a cow about the hotel. He finally discovered the mistake, but had confided his troubles to a friend, and now the boys come in every five minutes with a can and ask him for a cents' worth of milk.

Phoenix Club Banquet.

One week from this evening the quarterly meeting of the Phoenix club will be held in the rooms of the organization, and the refreshment committee are arranging for a banquet to mark the occasion. The club have a large amount of important business to transact, and the committee believe that the members will be weary enough to need the excellent spread they are preparing for the event.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Allison last evening, a son.

A youth was thrown from a horse on the Lisbon road near the city yesterday afternoon, and sustained a cut on his head.

The Metors base ball club and the Rechabites will play a game on the West End grounds one week from next Saturday.

The marriage of Miss Emma Hayes, of East End, and Mr. James Baldwin, of Monaca, has been announced for tomorrow evening.

Mr. S. J. Vandine and Mrs. Mary A. Taylor were married on Saturday evening at the parsonage by Doctor Huston of the First Methodist Episcopal church.

Reverend Green, the brother of Rev. J. P. Green, pastor of the Second United Presbyterian church, preached in that church yesterday. The gentleman is a student in the Allegheny seminary.

The Hollow Rock Campmeeting association is negotiating for the purchase of the grounds. The association have been holding meetings there for a number of years, and some of the stockholders are residents of this city.

The funeral of Mrs. Isabella Jobling, the pioneer resident who died Friday morning, took place at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon and was attended by a large crowd of the family's friends. The remains were laid to rest in Riverview cemetery.

A wager was made in the city on Saturday evening that before the first of 1900 East Liverpool will have another railroad and the population within a radius of three miles of the soldiers' monument will be more than 25,000. The principals are business men.

The Steubenville base ball club arrived on the noon train, and are now engaged in combat with the Young Mens Christian Association boys on the West End diamond. They have won many victories during the season, and the home club will be covered with glory should victory come their way.

The Epworth League of the First M. E. church will elect officers at their meeting next Thursday evening. The members are particularly anxious to have this intelligence spread abroad in the city, because it has been erroneously reported that the society met last week, and elected officers for the coming term.

The employees of the Lythe sewer pipe works, which has been shut down since Christmas, are in receipt of the good news that the plant will resume on Wednesday next. A new addition to the works has just been completed and will be opened at that time. New presses and new pans are also among the improvements at the works during the enforced idleness.

Postmaster Miskall won a box of cigars from a friend Saturday afternoon, and being of an unselfish and kind disposition decided to make the patrons of the office happy. After lighting one of the fragrant Henry Clays he took the box in hand, and distributed them among the lock boxes of the office. As a result he was showered with congratulations and good words.

Many inquiries have been made as to what the board of education expected to do with the yard in front of the new building now that the contractors have cleared away the piles of stone and brick that have covered the ground since the erection of the structure was commenced. It is proposed to fill the excavation with enough good soil to permit the growing of grass, and make the yard a fit companion for the beautiful building.

William Clay, a butcher who has many friends in the city, having been here for a number of years, left today for New York, and will on Wednesday set sail for England. He expects to visit the home of his boyhood, and spend six weeks with friends he knew many years ago. The number of people going from this city to Europe this year is large when it is remembered that reduced rates on ocean steamships is not in proportion to the severity of the times.

During the performance at the Grand on Saturday evening one of the audience was so bored by the performance that he could not keep his eyes open, and in a few minutes after the worst part of the program began was fast asleep. Being unable to control his actions he fell from the chair, and caused more laughter than the funny part of the performance. As one spectator remarked, "Maher knocked that man out without a blow."

John Tolbert, first baseman for the Young Men's Christian association junior team, will not be on the bag this afternoon. He was filled with the anxiety consuming the other members of the team to see the Steubenville boys defeated today, and with that thought to improve his ability by practicing on Saturday evening. One ball chance to strike his hand at a dangerous angle, and broke the thumb. The fracture is not a serious one, and he hopes to be playing very soon.

ELEVEN DEAD BODIES

Scattered Along the River
Shore by the Waves.

ALL STRANGERS IN THIS CITY

And Their Burial Is Regretted Only
From a Financial Point of View—Deceased Canines Number Eight and Horses Three Causing a Mighty Howl
From Weak Stomached Residents.

People who reside along the river shore, or in fact as close as 50 yards from the Ohio, are thinking of changing their places of abode. This applies principally to those who live between Washington street and the lower end of Fifth street. They are contented when the wind blows from the opposite direction but then they hold their noses and make unseemly remarks.

The cause is apparent to those who take a walk along the shore or those who reside nearer the edge of the stream. No less than eight deceased dogs and three or four horses are decorating the beach between the points named, and far enough apart to provide all with an odor that paralyzes, suffocates and leaves unconscious its victims by the score.

Where the defunct animals came from is a question, but it is supposed that they have been washed in by the waves after floating from towns above, where people imagine they own the river and all that pertains to it. The water soaked carcasses sustain this theory. Of course the city will have to bury them or what there is left of the number when the sexton arrives on the scene. Some will have been disposed of before he arrives, as those in the vicinity have had more than they want. Sanitary Policeman King will look after the matter today, and have funeral services over the strangers as soon as possible. One of the horses was the old gray of the fire department. It was buried today.

Good Words for Carey:

The Pittsburg Commercial Gazette
of this morning compliments Toadix
Carey when it says:

"Dan Brouters is not battling up to his old form. He is being harder pushed by young Carey, who is said by Baltimore authorities to be able to play all around the ex-Brooklynite."

Carey is a good man, and the Baltimore club have found in him a treasure which the management should give every opportunity to show its worth.

Accepting Invitations.

A number of Junior Mechanics and their lady friends are accepting the invitation sent out by the Mechanics of Chester, and will be present at the new council building over the river tomorrow evening. The Chester Mechanics propose to make the ball
the one great event in the history of their organization.

A Good Record.

A local rider who is too modest to allow the publication of his name
rode from Cook's Ferry to East End
last night in 36 minutes, and made the trip over dark and without a lantern. He thinks of issuing a challenge to Zimmerman, Zeigler, Johnson or others of his class.

mittee met in Columbus on Saturday
this district was represented by A. Z.
McKenzie, of Wellsville. When the convention was considered he voted side of the fence.

Broadway, is visiting in the country,
and from there will go to Pittsburg.

—Robert Worton went to Cambridge this morning, where he will attend the funeral of his father-in-law. Mrs. Worton has been there since last week.

—Criss McConnell, of the News
Review composing rooms, accompanied his wife Saturday afternoon to Carrollton where she will spend several weeks with relatives.

—Mrs. Lizzie McMasters and daughter, Miss Ella, and Miss Irene Cook,
of Cook's Ferry, visited Mrs. McMaster's daughter, Mrs. Daniel Derringer,
East End, Saturday. Mrs. Derringer
has been ill for some time.

—Miss Lottie McGhie, formerly of the business college in this city but now engaged in the office of Alfred Paull, Wheeling, returned to her desk today after spending a few days with friends in East End and recuperating from a brief illness.

Just Received

A Shipment of the Celebrated

Brighton Table Salt.

The phrase, "It is the Best," when applied to Brighton Salt means something; an assertion that is truthful, and a fact which can be proved by scientific analysis. Brighton Salt is the most perfect article of its kind ever manufactured; more lustrous and beautiful than any other. It is pure and wholesome, while a large bulk of the salt sold is impure and dirty. A tablespoonful of Brighton Table Salt dissolved in a glass of filtered water, produces a urine as clean and clear as a crystal. Any other test made will prove its purity, hence its value for general household purposes, and for making butter and cheese.
